THE VALUE AND PRICE OF INFORMATION: REFLECTIONS ON E-PUBLISHING IN THE HUMANITIES (BRUCE FRASER)

The paper attempts a change of focus from the single project to a broader range of e-publishing, considered by content and by target audience. The discussion covers both complex html-publications and scholarly papers. Potential fragilities are noted in the infrastructures which support each type, and consideration is given to current developments in archiving which aim to rectify them. A digital bibliography is included in the presentation file.
